John: 'I GOT THE OLSEN TWINS FIRED!'

Imagine a world in which the Olsen twins aren't multimillionaires! It turns out their wildly successful career was nearly cut short when they were just 11 months old – by their Full House co-star John Stamos. "I did [get them fired]," he recently admitted on the Good Guys podcast, explaining that Mary-Kate and Ashley, now 36, wouldn't stop screaming while filming the iconic diaper-changing scene from the sitcom's 1987 pilot. "They wanted to be anywhere else but there, and so did I. I said, 'Get rid of them, I can't work like this.'" Another pair of twins was hired, John, 59, added, but after a day or two, "I said, 'Bring the Olsens back, these kids are terrible!'" It all worked out in the end, he joked: "Now they own this building!"

I panicked-
MY HAIR WAS THINNING!

Amy felt her hair was shedding and starting to look bad. She wanted to do something about it. Here is her story:

"Lately my hair started to look dull and it was shedding like crazy. It was frustrating because thick and beautiful hair makes me feel good and I didn't want to lose that.

NUTRIENTS FOR YOUR HAIR

My friend told me about Hair Volume™. I searched online and found all the positive reviews and also learned that temporary hair loss due to lack of nutrients is common. I wanted to do something good for my hair so I decided to give Hair Volume™ a try – what did I have to lose?

3 MONTHS LATER

A few days later I started taking Hair Volume™, and now it has been almost 3 months. I feel so much more confident and happy that I am caring for my hair. My husband recently commented on my hair, which made me feel great. I strongly recommend this product to anyone who wants to promote healthy and full hair."

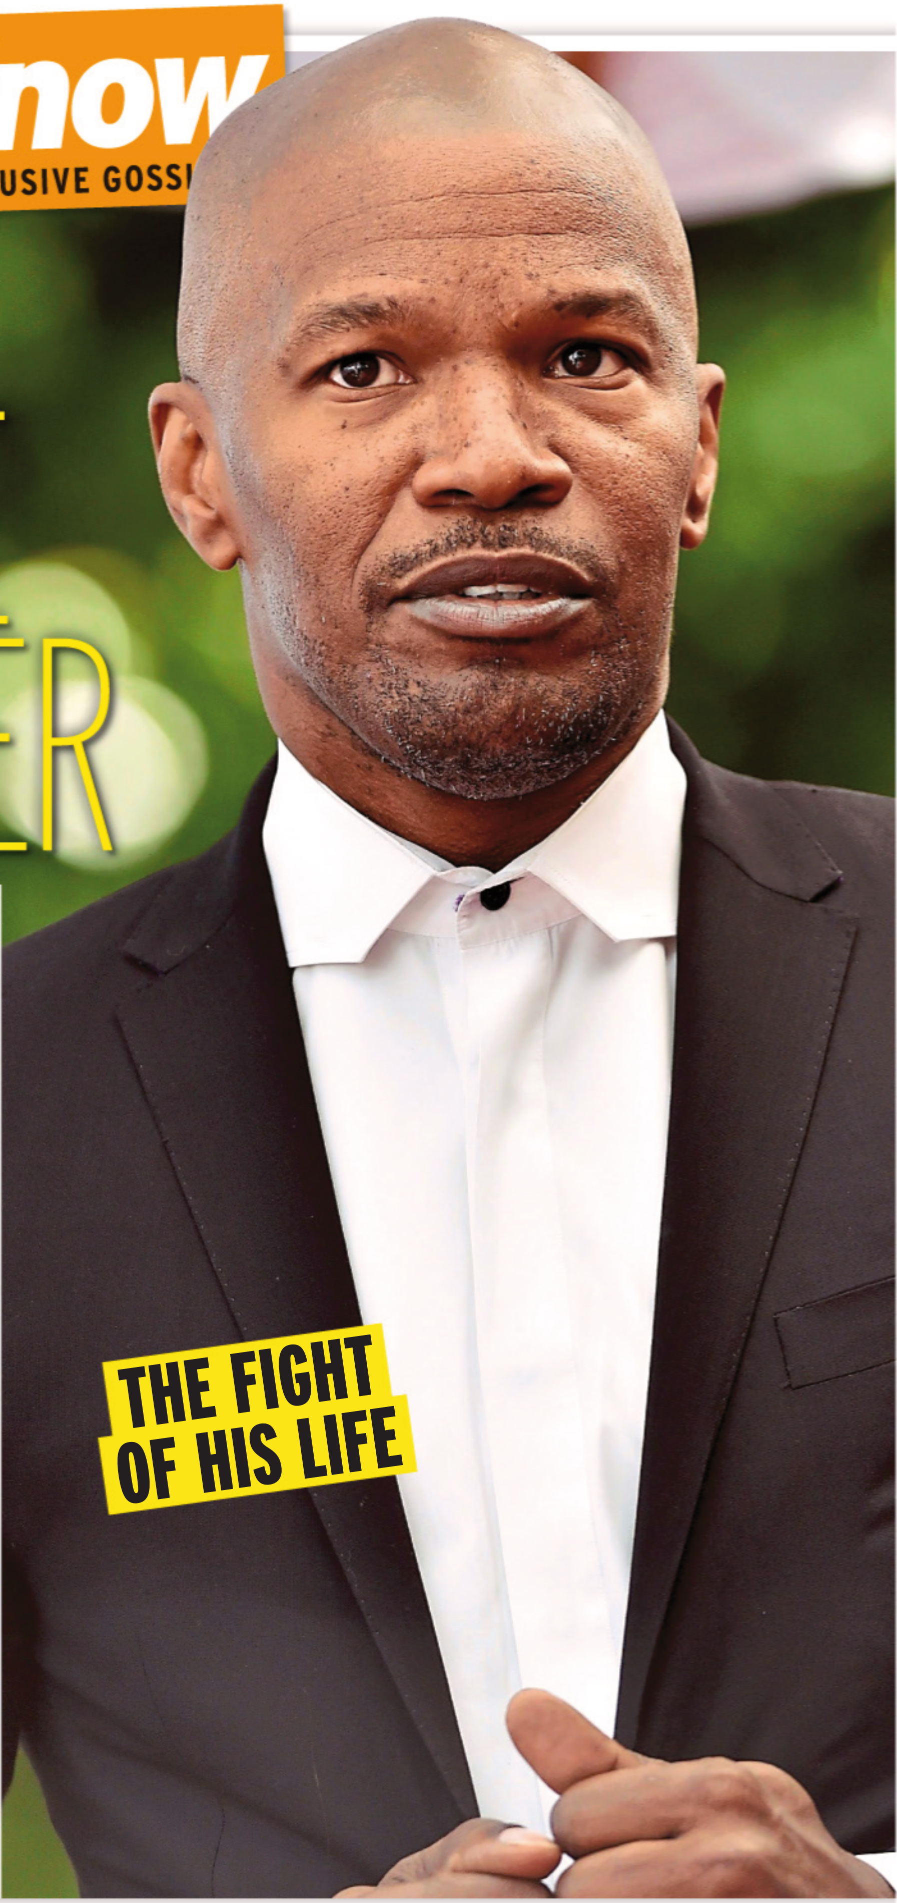
Jamie's STROKE SHOCKER

The "medical complication" that sent Jamie Foxx to the hospital on April 11 is no longer a mystery: In Touch has learned the actor, 55, suffered a massive stroke. At press time, Jamie remained in the hospital and "was having trouble breathing," says a source. "He was almost done filming his new movie" — Back in Action with Cameron Diaz and Glenn Close — "but it will now be completed using his stunt double." The actor's family has been tight-lipped about his condition from the start. "Luckily, due to quick action and great care, he is already on his way to recovery," his daughter Corinne, 29, posted on Instagram on April 12, not disclosing what happened to her father. On May 3, Jamie finally broke his silence, writing to his 16.2 million followers on Instagram, "Appreciate all the love. Feeling blessed." (Jamie also thanked Nick Cannon for taking over the Fox game show Beat Shazam as a guest host; Jamie launched Beat Shazam as host and executive producer in 2017.) Jamie, who has now been in the hospital for three weeks, "has a long road ahead of him," says the source, "but everyone is being very optimistic — including Jamie."



THE FIGHT OF HIS LIFE

GUESS WHO?!

This relationship is as fake as a three-dollar bill. The It couple of the moment are heating up red carpets together, but it's not what you think. He's not sleeping with her – they're fashion besties at most – and it's all for publicity.

KEVIN'S MARRIAGE Blows Up

It's over! On May 2, Kevin Costner's wife of 18 years, Christine Baumgartner, 49, filed for divorce. "Kevin was blindsided," a source tells In Touch. "But Christine hasn't been happy for a while. She loves Kevin, but they wanted different things. The buzz going around is that Kevin's workload affected his home life." Although he's rumored to be leaving Yellowstone, the actor, 68, has been gearing up for the new western film Horizon. Kevin is estimated to be worth $250 million, but court papers indicate the couple, who wed in 2004 after dating for six years, have a prenup. Still, says the source, "if Christine doesn't get what she wants, it could get very contentious."

More Plastic Surgery for Meg?

Meg Ryan looked "nearly unrecognizable," says an eyewitness, when she stepped out for a screening of the Apple TV+ film STILL: A Michael J. Fox Movie in NYC on May 3. "It looks like she got a large amount of filler in her cheeks and eye areas or a midface lift, but I'm leaning toward filler," says NYC-based plastic surgeon Dr. Steve Fallek, who hasn't treated the 61-year-old actress. "It's interesting that the lower half of her face looks pretty normal." Meg has denied that her changed face is the result of plastic surgery.

GROWING FAMILY!

MEGHAN & HARRY'S Baby

Friends say Meghan Markle and Prince Harry will soon welcome a third child

Joy!

IT'S WHY SHE MISSED HIS BIG DAY

The deal was big news. On April 27, Meghan Markle signed up to be represented by legendary agent Ari Emanuel at the powerful Hollywood talent agency WME in a bid to dramatically expand content creation at her and husband Prince Harry's production company, Archewell, and generate other massive business opportunities. "This will likely make Meghan a multimillionaire on her own — without any help from the royal family," says a source. "All of Hollywood is buzzing about it."

But soon, it appears, she will have an even bigger announcement to make. "Friends think Meghan is pregnant!" the source reveals to In Touch, adding that those close to the duchess say her condition is the real reason why she skipped King Charles' coronation on May 6. And while Harry once insisted they wanted "two, maximum," the parents to Archie, 4, and Lilibet, 23 months, "would consider another baby a sign from the universe — a wish come true," adds the source. "Baby No. 3 was not necessarily part of their plan, but they'll be overjoyed to welcome another child."

GEARING UP

They haven't started openly celebrating just yet. "This would be considered a geriatric pregnancy, so Meghan wouldn't take any risks and definitely won't tell anyone until the three-month mark," the source says of the 41-year-old, who had a miscarriage in July 2020. That should come soon, as "friends think she's due around November."

There have been telltale signs. The duchess wore a billowy blazer over her shorts at a Lakers game on April 24, the same day she released a video in which her skin glowed so much, headlines suggested she'd had a "Montecito Makeover." Instead,

HER DAD BEGS TO SEE HER

Thomas Markle, who suffered a stroke last year, gave what he called his "final interview" on April 30 – and begged his daughter for reconciliation. "If she doesn't turn up for a stroke, if that doesn't move her, what would?" the 78-year-old lamented, claiming he hasn't heard from Meghan since 2018, when she wrote him a "hateful and cruel" letter. After it was leaked to the press, Meghan "mourn[ed] the loss of her father," Harry wrote in Spare. Thomas' response? "She killed me and then she mourned me. I refuse to be buried by her," he said, adding that he was "protecting her" by not revealing other parts of her note. Still, he is making a shocking peace offering to the Sussexes: "Meg, I love you – I love my grandchildren. I'd love to see them. Harry, I love you for marrying my daughter. Let's go somewhere and talk. How can I fix this?"

her fresh look may be due to expectant-mom hormones, says the source. "Her hair looked a lot thicker and shinier, too, which also sometimes happens during pregnancy."

Meghan's health routine hasn't changed much. "She's already extremely mindful of what she eats and sticks to the freshest organic fruits and vegetables available," says an insider, who believes the duchess will choose to give birth at the Santa Barbara Cottage Hospital again, as she did with Lili. "She also does yoga and Pilates, which keep her energy levels up."

And Harry, who rushed home after the coronation for Archie's birthday party and to be with Meghan, is helping with top-secret preparations. The nursery at their $14.7 million Montecito, Calif., spread is animal-themed, and the duke, 38, has been working hard on the family's outside play area, where Archie and Lili spend a lot of time. "Harry's been putting his DIY skills to use," says the source, "building slides and putting up swings."

All of this change has delighted their other children. Friends say the couple, who wed in 2018, will share the happy news with Archie and Lili as soon as possible. "They will let the children know in a way they'd understand: by reading a story or drawing a picture of a growing family and asking them to donate toys," says the source. "Meghan knows they'll be amazing with the baby." And while Lili is still a bit young to really grasp what's happening, an insider says, "Archie has already been asking for a brother!"

A CHANCE FOR HEALING

His parents wouldn't mind that, either. While Meghan simply "loves seeing how much Archie takes after Harry and likes the idea of more balance at home," says the insider, Harry has "given a lot of thought to the idea of raising brothers," says the insider. His relationship with William — whom he described in his tell-all, Spare, as both his "beloved brother" and his "archnemesis" — "has been far from perfect. But Harry wants to give his son a chance to form that kind of lifelong bond."

And since William, 40, is destined to become king, his and Harry's duty to the monarchy "was always a big source of tension," says the insider. "Harry's kids won't have to worry about having different roles. He's hoping the next generation can do better than he and William did."

Welcoming a new child might even help open the door to reconciliation with the royal family. "When Kate and William find out Meghan and Harry are expecting again, they'll immediately reach out to congratulate them. Kate, especially, is a softie like that," says the source. And a new grandchild could be just the thing to bring Charles, 74, and Harry closer. "Babies have a way of making people forgive and forget past hurts," the source points out. "If anything could heal the family's rift, it's this." ■

SHE'S HAD 1 DATE IN 7 YEARS!

ANGELINA'S Lonely Life

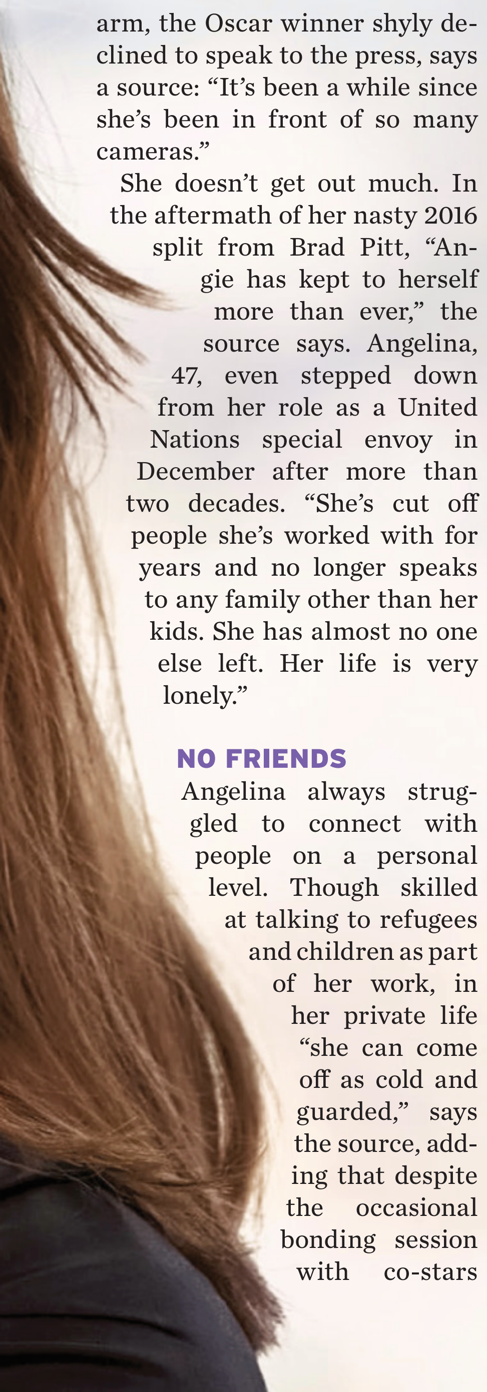
Still traumatized by her divorce, Angelina Jolie has cut herself off from friends and loved ones



It was a rare public appearance. Angelina Jolie, looking every bit the movie star wearing vintage Chanel and a classic red lip, attended President Joe Biden and First Lady Jill Biden's White House State Dinner on April 26 for South Korean President Yoon Suk Yeol. With her son Maddox on her arm, the Oscar winner shyly declined to speak to the press, says a source: "It's been a while since she's been in front of so many cameras."

She doesn't get out much. In the aftermath of her nasty 2016 split from Brad Pitt, "Angie has kept to herself more than ever," the source says. Angelina, 47, even stepped down from her role as a United Nations special envoy in December after more than two decades. "She's cut off people she's worked with for years and no longer speaks to any family other than her kids. She has almost no one else left. Her life is very lonely."

NO FRIENDS

Angelina always struggled to connect with people on a personal level. Though skilled at talking to refugees and children as part of her work, in her private life "she can come off as cold and guarded," says the source, adding that despite the occasional bonding session with co-stars like Elle Fanning and Salma Hayek, "she's acknowledged that she's not much of a girls' girl." For years, the actress relied solely on her husband and kids (see sidebar) for support and companionship. "I don't have a lot of friends," she admitted in 2011. "Brad really is the only person I talk to."

Five years later, the marriage imploded. During the exhausting, still-ongoing legal battle, Angelina briefly reconnected with her estranged father, Jon Voight, 84. "He's been very understanding that they need their grandfather at this time," she revealed in 2017. But now, says the source, "they've lost contact again." Her brother, James Haven, 50, "was her touchstone for many years" — the sometime-actor, who infamously shared a kiss with Angelina at the 2000 Oscars, even reportedly moved in with her after her split — "but they've recently had a falling-out. Now James and Jon are closer than ever , and Angie's left out."

The thrice-married sex symbol, who once openly boasted about taking lovers, hasn't bothered to seek out romantic partners, either. "Her dating life has all but vanished," says the source. A brief flirtation with The Weeknd, 33, in 2021 quickly fizzled. "I am sure she misses companionship," adds the source, "but I don't think she is eager to commit herself fully again."

Still, the isolation is taking a toll. "Angie used to have such a vibrant, adventurous spirit, but her light has really dimmed in the past few years," says a source. "Hopefully in time she'll be open to dating and having fun again. Her kids just want to see her be truly happy." ■

HER KIDS ARE HER ONLY COMPANIONS

MADDOX BY HER SIDE

"They're the best friends I've ever had," the star, with her son, 21, at the White House on April 26, says of her kids. "Nobody has ever stood by me more."

BONDING WITH SHILOH

Angelina (with Shiloh, 16, at a Måneskin concert in Rome in 2022) "loves hanging out with the kids," says the source.

MISSING ZAHARA

With her eldest daughter, 18, away at college, Angelina has been dealing with empty-nest syndrome, says the source: "Her kids are much more independent and leading their own lives."

HAPPY & HEALTHY! STARS DITCH THE DIETS!

Who needs Ozempic? These celebrities are OK with their bodies just the way they are

KOURTNEY'S CHANGING SHAPE

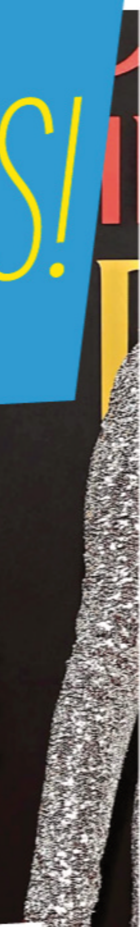
The reality star, 44, admits months of IVF treatment has "definitely taken a toll on my body," but she credits new husband Travis Barker, 47, with helping her embrace her new curves. "Every day Travis is like, 'You're so fine, you've never been better.' And now I'm so into it. I love the changes now."

BLAKE'S LOCKDOWN LOVE HANDLES

Blake Shelton jokes he gained "117 pounds" during lockdown, and apparently he's OK with it. The 6-foot-5 Voice coach, 46, reportedly feels that due to his height he carries his weight well, and because he likes to drink and eat whatever he wants, he'll just wear Spanx!

SELENA LOVES HERSELF

"Not a model, never will be," Selena, 30, declared in February, noting that she's gained weight from her lupus medication. "When I'm on it, I tend to hold a lot of water weight. When I'm off of it, I tend to lose weight," she says. Either way, she knows she's "wonderful" and "beautiful."



CHRISTINA PREFERS TO BE CURVY

"As you age, you stop comparing yourself to other people and start appreciating your own body and owning it," says the "What a Girl Wants" singer, 42. "I hated being super skinny. Once I started filling out a little bit, I was loving my new curves. I appreciated having a booty."

BEBE MAKES NO APOLOGIES

Bebe Rexha, 33, is the first to admit she's put on some weight, joking, "A b---h likes to eat." "I love her for being so unique and real," praised a fan. "She loves herself inside and out, and we can see it." Replied Bebe: "Thank you to all the people who love me no matter what."

MIRANDA FLAUNTS IT

Miranda Lambert, 39, showed off her curves in an electric-blue shirt dress when she promoted her new cookbook, *Y'all Eat Yet?: Welcome to the Pretty B*tchin' Kitchen*, in NYC on April 25. "I feel my best when I'm a toned, not flabby, size 8," she's said.

Sandra SECRETLY

Time off looks good on her. A year after revealing she was taking a break from Hollywood to be more present for her kids, Sandra Bullock was spotted in NYC on April 25 looking happy, rested and relaxed. Wearing a cream sweater with comfy black pants, sneakers and sunglasses, she walked through Manhattan's West Village carrying her adorable dog, Sweetie, and a bag in one arm and a black coat on the other. She also had something special on her left hand: a ring.

The simple gold band was low-key — just like Sandra, 58, and her longtime partner, Bryan

HER NEW LIFE AWAY FROM HOLLYWOOD

In the spring of 2022, Sandra revealed plans to take a lengthy hiatus from Hollywood — at least five years — so she could spend more time with Louis and Laila. "I just want to be 24/7 with my babies and my family," she said, explaining that she'd return to acting and producing "when I'm done being a mom. I'll get back to it. I don't know when. Probably when they're teenagers, solidly 16- or 17-year-olds." She's made good on that promise over the last year, shuttling her kids to school and activities and taking them on trips and adventures — what she's called "servicing their every need" as well as "their social calendar."

MARRIED?!

Eight years into her romance with Bryan Randall, the actress is finally ready for more

THEIR RINGS!

SOMETHING NEW

"Sandra, who's called Bryan a "beautiful human being" and "a good man," wore a gold band while walking her dog, Sweetie, in NYC's West Village on April 25.

Randall, 57 — but it still got everyone talking. More than eight years after she fell for the model turned photographer, "people are whispering about how Sandra and Bryan eloped a few months ago," a source close to the couple tells In Touch. "But they're so private, of course they wouldn't be in any rush to make an official announcement."

CHANGE OF HEART

Especially since Sandra previously said she had no plans to wed. "I am someone who went through the divorce process," she explained in 2021, referencing her heartbreaking 2010 split from cheating Monster Garage star Jesse James, 54. "I don't need a [piece of] paper to be a devoted partner, a devoted mother [to children Louis, 13, and Laila, 11]."

Yet despite Sandra's terrible experience with her ex, "she knows she wants to spend the rest of her life with Bryan, who's been an amazing father to her kids," says the source. "So it's possible she decided to take the plunge again after all, despite the hell and public humiliation she went through in the past."

THE ONE

Sometimes timing is everything. "Bryan never thought she'd come around on the marriage issue, but she seems to have," says the source. "And Sandra had just taken a step back from acting, which means they have time to really focus on their marriage and their family. Everyone assumes the ceremony was just them and a few friends and family. Sandra doesn't like a big fuss. She and Bryan are very down-to-earth."

And deeply committed to each other. "He's the example that I would want my children to have," Sandra's said of knowing she's with the right man. "He's the love of my life." ■

InTouch with ... SUNNY HOSTIN

On Her Successful Career:

I NEVER DREAMED THIS BIG!

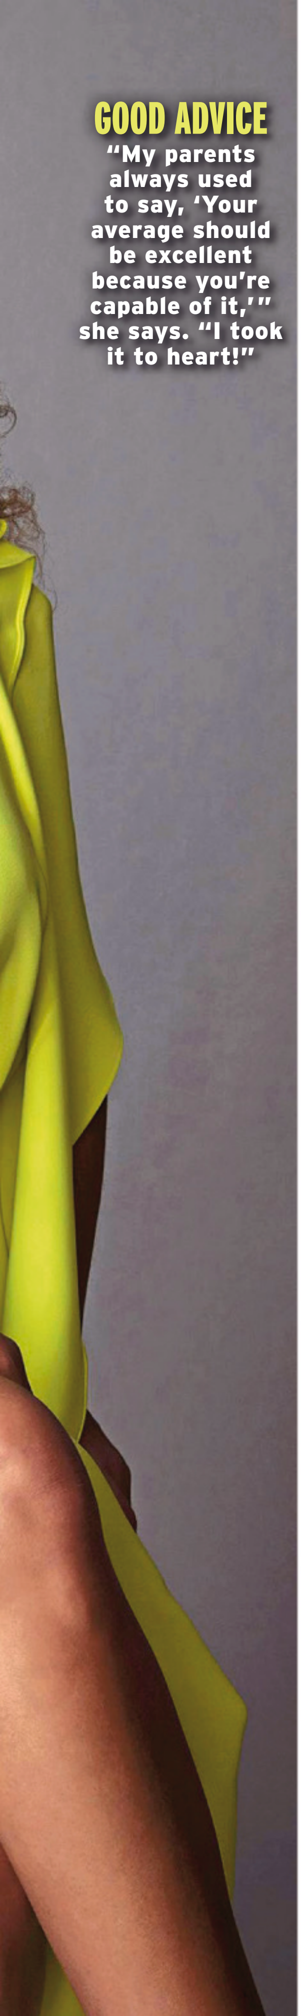
The View co-host's many accomplishments have exceeded her expectations

NEW YORK TIMES BESTSELLING AUTHOR OF SUMMER ON THE BLUFFS
SUNNY HOSTIN
A Novel
Summer on Sag Harbor

DOUBLE DUTY

"Even though I'm a morning talk show host, I write at night," says Sunny, whose second novel is out now. "Whoopi is a night owl, too. That's how I made it on The View – she watched the overnight show I anchored."



GOOD ADVICE

"My parents always used to say, 'Your average should be excellent because you're capable of it,'" she says. "I took it to heart!"

Sunny Hostin is having a pinch-me moment. Currently in her sixth year co-hosting The View, the TV journalist just released her second novel, Summer on Sag Harbor, on May 2. (Her first novel, Summer on the Bluffs, is being made into a TV series.) "I'm so flabbergasted," the NYC native, 54, says of her soaring career. "I didn't dream that big! I didn't see myself working with Whoopi Goldberg and Joy Behar every day and writing bestselling books. That's why when I give talks now, I tell people, 'You're only as limited as your dreams.'" Here, the mom to Gabriel, 19, and Paloma, 16 (their dad is Sunny's orthopedic surgeon husband of 25 years, Emmanuel), talks to In Touch*'s Katie Bruno about sacrifice, her favorite* View guests, and the secret to a great beach read.

Did you have a different life path in mind?

SH: I figured I'd write a couple of history books or maybe a compilation of short stories. There weren't many people who looked like me on television when I was growing up. I never imagined I'd be on The View being interviewed by Barbara Walters.

What do you consider your big break?

SH: I anchored ABC's overnight show World News Now. It was a struggle because my kids were little and I was also doing CNN and Good Morning America segments, so I'd rush home to get my children to school, sleep a couple of hours and then go to CNN. It was crazy — but well worth it.

Tell us about Summer on Sag Harbor.

SH: When Summer on the Bluffs came out, readers felt like they wanted to know more about Olivia Jones, so this one centers around Olivia and her journey. A beach read has to have good sex. Joy Behar told me that I've gotten better at writing sex scenes!

Are you already writing book No. 3?

SH: I'm about 150 pages in! It takes place in Highland Beach [, Md.].

How do you balance career and home life?

SH: I don't believe in the work-life balance thing that everybody tries to sell us on. You have to prioritize and make choices.

Your husband also has a demanding job...

SH: I know it's a cliché, but it takes a village. We've had au pairs and nannies, and I have an amazing support system. My dad moved in with us and takes my daughter to school. I have a lot of selfless people around me.

KEEP HARVARD
ALVIN AILEY

FAMILY MATTERS

"My daughter is 16, and she needs me more than ever now. My son is in his second year of college and probably calls me a couple times a week for advice," she says of her kids with hubby Emmanuel.

Who was your favorite guest on The View?

SH: Chadwick Boseman was really special. He seemed like such an old soul.

Has anyone surprised you?

SH: It shocks me when we have guests who are really willing to open up. These famous, impressive people are really giving of themselves. Viola Davis was extremely vulnerable. Sir Patrick Stewart was so normal, and Helen Mirren was so down to earth.

Do you have a dream guest?

SH: I would love to interview Barack Obama. He has been on the show before, when I wasn't on it. I've met him in person, but I would love to pick his brain on a couple of things, You've accomplished so much. Anything else on your bucket list?

SH: I love history and I'd love to host some more docuseries. My Sunny Hostin Productions company has a lot in the pipeline. I want to keep telling stories. ■

TUNE IN! The View airs weekdays at 11 a.m. on ABC.

STARS SHINE AT THE MET GALA

Fashion favorites went all out for the most glam event of the year!

The first Monday in May is iconic in NYC. It's the day Hollywood's style stars swarm the city to attend the celebrated Metropolitan Museum of Art's Costume Institute Gala, aka the Oscars of Fashion. This year's theme, Karl Lagerfeld: A Line of Beauty, brought out the biggest names to honor the late designer and his illustrious career, which spanned seven decades. Celebs donned archival designs and, in a nod to Karl's 36-year tenure with the luxe French house, incorporated infamous Chanel details such as camellia flowers, tweed, pearls and black and white. The most literal look in the sartorial salute to the legend? Doja Cat dressed as Karl's beloved feline, Choupette!

Margot Robbie's Picture-Perfect Glam

"My inspiration for tonight's look is clean, glowy, fresh and heightened perfection," says Chanel makeup artist Pati Dubroff, who created Margot Robbie's stunning beauty look for the Met Gala in NYC on May 1 using all Chanel Beauty products. For a skin-sational finish, Dubroff was strategic about product placement to ensure that certain areas of the Barbie star's face would radiate, explaining, "The look was all about shine, so I used Chanel Baume Essentiel Multi-Use Glow Stick in Dragée on top of the cheekbones and on the eyelids." BRB, adding this look to our spring/summer mood board!

Fast X

The whole family (now also including Rita Moreno and Brie Larson) is back for the penultimate movie in the blockbuster franchise — and they're facing a powerful new foe. Jason Momoa plays Dante, who's out for vengeance for his drug lord father's death that occurred during the crew's Fast Five heist in Brazil back in 2011 (which, incidentally, featured Dwayne Johnson's first appearance in the series). "It felt really good to go there without some ego competition," the Aquaman star says of joining Vin and the gang. "I'm like, 'No, dude, you got 10 movies under your belt. It's an honor to be here.' "
